Re: Draft National Nursing and Midwifery Digital Health Capabilities Framework

I am writing to thank the Australasian Institute of Digital Health (AIDH) for the opportunity to provide feedback on the Draft National Nursing and Midwifery Digital Health Capabilities Framework. The Australian College of Nursing (ACN) has promoted this consultation opportunity to our thousands of members who are Nurse Practitioners, Registered Nurses and Enrolled Nurses working in all health care settings across Australia.

I would like to commend AIDH for drafting this framework and outlining in detail the different components of each domain. This framework is important for the future as nurses and midwifes continue to embrace digital technologies and adopt their use in workplaces and different practice settings. ACN is proud to have been involved in this project through the Advisory Committee and is looking forward to this framework being finalised and released.

If you have any questions please do not hesitate to get in touch with me, Dr Carolyn Stapleton FACN, Manager – Policy and Advocacy.

Yours sincerely
