

NURSE EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

The Nurse Executive Leadership Program will develop those in, or those aspiring to, nurse executive roles with the capabilities required to meet the future social, political and economic challenges in health and aged care.

The program is structured to meet the requirements of ACN's Nurse Executive Capability Framework supporting nursing executives nationally to continue in the health and aged care industry as they navigate the current health care landscape and strengthen their knowledge and influence in their existing and future roles.

Suitability

The Nurse Executive Leadership Program is suitable for registered nurses who generally have more than six years of professional experience and have worked in senior leadership or executive roles within the health or aged care system. To be suitable for the program applicants must have the ability to meet the capabilities as outlined in ACN's Nurse Executive Capability Framework.

Program objectives

On successful completion of this program executive nurses will be able to:

- balance expectations related to operational management and executive leadership
- influence, monitor, guide at a strategic level, network, partner, and be across the latest evidence to make decisions
- lead the strategy and facilitate implementation
- build capacity in the next leadership level and throughout the organisation.

Program modules
